forked tongue, even at the foot of the throne.

When your majesty called for my good advice in forming an administration, I recommended such men as I thought were possessed of the best heads, and best hearts, in your kingdoms, except one, who has since been removed from your majesty's service; men who had deserved well of their country, and of whose approbation they had received the most ample testimonies. I am perswaded, from your majesty's known firmness and integrity, that you will not withdraw your countenance and support from such ministers, nor suffer all legal authority so to be insulted and trampled on by a faction totally disunited in principle, and only leagued together with the interested view of forcing themselves into power, by disturbing the public peace, and insulting the dignity of the crown.

The present clamours not being founded on the solid basis of truth, or real grievances, must fall to the ground.---Be not deceived, great Sire, by the petitions and complaints of designing men, artfully obtained from a well-meaning but deluded multitude, who, by craving redress from the throne against the legislature and the courts of justice, thereby set your majesty above both, and thus erect a power unknown to the constitution, and subversive of that liberty they wish to vindicate and maintain.

Much has been said about my partiality towards America---I will freely tell your majesty my sentiments with regard to America.---My opinion is the same now it ever was.---While the colonies behave like dutiful children, they are entitled to every possible indulgence.---But, when they come to dispute the authority of the mother country, the last ship, the last man, should be employed to reduce them to obedience.

During my retirement, I have received repeated information, that some of these leaders of faction have laboured to foment discord, and excite unreasonable jealousies between the two nations which compose your kingdom of Great-Britain. This information gave me inexpressible concern; being firmly persuaded, that no foreign force can hurt us if we are united at home.---That union was the cause, under God, of all our successes during the late glorious war; that union I ever exerted my poor abilities to strengthen and improve; and those that endeavour to dissolve it, carry a DAGGER under the cloak of patriotism to stab their country to the heart.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

I can now with perfect truth and sincerity repeat those assurances which I had the honour to make to your majesty by letter, when I entreated your royal permission to withdraw my name from administration, "That it was not owing to any disapprobation of the measures pursued by your majesty's servants, but solely occasioned by bodily pain and weakness."---Such was the nature of my infirmity, that I was incapable of discharging the duties of the high office to which your majesty had graciously appointed me, and therefore I could not with honour receive the emoluments annexed to it.

I am told, that your majesty's ministers have been accused of arbitrary and oppressive measures.---The accusation would be a dreadful one, were it a just one; but perhaps the very reverse of it is the truth.---Might I presume to express my judgment of the measures of government, it is, that they have been, if possible, TOO LENIENT.

Being now about to retire to a more distant part of the country, I embrace this opportunity of assuring your majesty, that if it shall ever please the great Giver of all Good to restore my former health and strength, it shall be my utmost PRIDE to dedicate them to the service of the best of kings, by preserving entire our happy constitution---by supporting the dignity of the crown---and giving due energy to legal authority.

* The noble lord in most of his speeches has made frequent allusions to holy writ. On this occasion he is supposed to have had in his eye the following passage in St. John: "Of all those, none have I lost, except one, the Son of Perdition, &c.

Copy of a Letter from LORD HOLLAND, to the LORD MAYOR of LONDON, with his Lordship's Answer thereto,

To the Right Honourable the LORD MAYOR.

MY LORD,

IN a petition presented by your lordship, it is mentioned as a grievance---Instead of punishing, conferring honours on a paymaster, the public defaulter of unaccounted millions. I am told that I am the paymaster here censured: May I beg to know of your lordship if it is so? If it is, I am sure Mr. Beckford must have been against it, because he knows, and could have shewn your lordship in writing, the utter falsehood of what is there insinuated.

I have not the honour to know your lordship, so I cannot tell what you may have heard to induce you to carry to our sovereign a complaint of so attrocious a nature.

Your lordship, by your speech made to the king at delivering the petition, has adopted the contents of it; and I don't know of whom to enquire but of your lordship concerning this injury done to an innocent man, who am by this means (if I am the person meant) hung out as an object of public hatred and resentment.

You have too much honour and justice not to tell me whether I am the person meant, and if I am, the grounds upon which I am thus charged, that I may vindicate myself, which truth will enable me to do to the conviction of the bitterest enemy; and therefore I may boldly say, to your lordship's entire satisfaction, whom I certainly have never offended. I am with the greatest respect, My Lord,

Your lordship's most obedient,
and most humble servant,
HOLLAND.

Holland-House, Kensington,
July 9, 1769.

The Lord Mayor's Answer.

The Lord Mayor presents his compliments to Lord Holland, and in answer to the honour of his lordship's letter, delivered to him by Mr. Selwyn, he begs leave to say, that he had no concern in drawing up the petition from the livery of London to his majesty, that he looks on himself only as the carrier, together with other gentlemen, charged by the livery with the delivery of it; that he does not, and never did, hold himself accountable for the contents of it, and is a stranger to the nature of the supposed charge against his lordship.

Nothing passed at the [illegible] cer, that he was happy in exposing the cause the hasty resolve, and that neither his own honour, nor the regard he professed for the gentleman he so much abused, would permit him to put up with so infolent an affront. After much altercation and abuse, on the side of the officer Mr. G. took him by the nose, and told him he would thus for who was the greatest coward. They immediately adjourned to Hyde-park, attended by two gentlemen of the army, and, after a contest of about a minute, Mr. G. wounded the officer in the sword-arm, and thus terminated the dispute.

The speech of a noble Lord, given in this and the last of the papers, is the subject of much conversation, and various are the conjectures formed of it. Many are of opinion that it is fictitious, as it so entirely differs from the conversation which passed a few days ago between the Earl of Chatham and Mr. Alderman Trecothick, in which this Nobleman is said to have advised the Alderman, that we might expect a total change both of men and measures.

The friends of the gentlemen at the London Tavern affect, that the pretended speech of a noble Earl, with the attempts made to bring him into a share of the administration, are nothing more than artifices of the present ministry, to procure, if they can, the sanction of his countenance and approbation to measures which they themselves guide. Others pretend that the said nobleman's name is already become so unpopular, that it is impossible for any ministry to derive the least weight from it, to measures which are not in themselves strictly constitutional; and that the present ministry are so thoroughly convinced of this, as well as of the rectitude of their own proceedings, that it was entirely without their approbation, and even knowledge, he was sent for, the advice having been given from another quarter.

The levee at St. James's yesterday was very numerous, but the meeting of the council was postponed till to-morrow.

Both Houses of Parliament will meet on Wednesday next, pursuant to their last prorogation.

An extraordinary coolness, it is said, has been observed within these two days between a very great Personage, and a certain elderly lady in Pall-Mall.

A certain lady in Cavendish-Square was watched on Monday night, between the hours of 11 and 12, to go from her own house, in a private hackney chair, to visit another elderly lady in Pall-Mall, and after staying there about an hour, the same lady took another hackney chair, and went to Buckingham-house.

A morning paper says, that the Earl of Hillsborough, as secretary of state for America, has sent orders to Lord Botetourt, Governor of Virginia, to call a new Assembly, in the room of that lately dissolved in that Province, and to assure the Virginians, that all their grievances in respect to the late acts, made for the purpose of raising a revenue in America, will certainly be repealed next winter, of which news, circular letters are dispatched to all the other colonies.

A gentleman, who was present at the delivery of a popular paper, informs us, that a certain great Personage did not turn away from the Magistrate who presented it, till the latter made a full stop, which he did in the middle of a sentence, and seemed not a little disconcerted, from being awe-struck, as is supposed, with the dignity of the Personage he was addressing.

It is said that the gentlemen Agents for the American colonies, who attended the board of trade yesterday, received some agreeable accounts relative to the conciliating measures now adopted, regarding North America.

JULY 14. Yesterday a Polish Nobleman, charged with letters of great importance from his Danish Majesty, was introduced to his Majesty at St. James's, where he was admitted to a private audience.

It is said a Nobleman lately declared, that the only way to Salvation was by Dissolution.

Letters from Minorca mention, that pursuant to orders from England, the dock-yards at Mahon, and other parts of the island, had been got ready for the reception, and occasional heaving down of such men of war, as may have occasion for careening, and other necessary repairs.

Extract of a Letter from Virginia, May 3, 1769.

"The times make every body haul close, and dread to deal with so severe a mother-country; therefore we patch and pinch, that she may feel the difference between tenderness and cruelty to her children; that her prudence may teach her, slaves can never be so useful as her affectionate descendants. For this reason, if I send for a few goods, they shall be very few. My family, as yet untaught at once to put on the russet gown, or drink the tea of our gardens, may possibly make a few articles necessary, but not one that bears a duty payable here will I ever send for, until my own Representatives shall lay a tax upon them; and tea, that I cannot get clear of your duty, I will never drink ---Some other ships may bring this little invoice.

"Our Assembly is meeting; I am not one of them, but I believe every Member is so convinced of the determination of his Constituents, that the man who gives up a little of his liberty, must do it at the hazard of ------, and I am certain there is not a Briton in the world but must applaud the resolution; for a people not born to slavery cannot divest themselves of the feelings of those intitled to the same freedom with them, in any manner going to be deprived of it. Ask me for assistance, and give me the reason why, I am ready to grant it to the last shilling; but take it not out of my pocket, for I am ready to die to protect it: And this your supercilious Bashaws, truly, call a rebellious disposition---All England, then, have been constantly rebellious, for her history is full of this resolution,----O dreadful measure! formed only to disunite at once the most affectionate and most powerful people on earth."

JULY 15. The Speech printed in the public papers, said to be delivered by Lord Chatham, is now generally asserted to be the production of a great Officer of the Crown; with what views, may be guessed from the perusal of it.

No less than five lame ducks waddled out of Change-alley yesterday; the sum against them is said to be more than 200,000l.

JULY 17. We have authority to assure the public, that the speech of a noble Earl to a great Personage, July 7, is entirely without foundation.

The subject of a paymaster's accounts, as set forth in the petition of the Livery of London, which has given such umbrage to a late paymaster, is far from being a new topic: for some years ago the patriotic Alderman Beckford took occasion to mention them, in a respectable assembly; and when that circumstance reached the ears of the then right honourable paymaster, he took the most effectual way of clearing his own character from all im-

JULY 19. We have received, and give to our public, the following authentic copy of a letter received yesterday by a Liverpool man of London:

"DEAR SIR, Pimlico, July 15, 1769.

"I confess myself surprised at you desiring to see, or hearing my name and papers in my possession, appealed to by a noble Lord; you and my friends in the city think it incumbent on me to vindicate (as they are pleased to express themselves) my honour and character, which is called in question. The only proper satisfaction in my power to give you and my other friends, is to relate plain matter of fact, to the best of my recollection. In the last Sessions of Parliament, in a question of revenue, (so far as my memory serves) I declared, in the House, that the public revenue had been squandered away, and that the money of the nation had not been regularly applied and accounted for. That, in the department of the Post-office, I had been informed, there were upwards of forty pensions, not properly accounted for; that the officers of the King's Exchequer were bound in duty to do justice done to the public; that process had issued out of the Court of Exchequer, and that all proceedings for a certain time had been suspended by the King's sign manual. I then did declare, that it was an high offence for any Minister to advise the King to stop the course of public justice, without assigning a very good reason for such his advice. I desired the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Lords of the Treasury, who sat opposite to me, to set me right, if my information was not well founded; but not a single word was uttered in answer by any of the gentlemen in administration. After some days had elapsed, I met my friend Mr. Woodhouse in Westminster-Hall; he told me I had been misinformed, as to what I had mentioned in the House of Commons, and that if I would give him leave, he would send me a paper from a noble Lord, which would convince me of my mistake.---The paper alluded to, is in London; I therefore cannot speak of the contents with accuracy and precision; but this I recollect, that the perusal of the paper did not convince me, that all I had heard was false. It was a private paper; and I do not recollect having shewn it to more than a single person. I have no doubt, Mr. Woodhouse has a copy of the paper by him, and I hope he will submit the contents to the judgment of the public, in vindication of an innocent man. I am, dear Sir, your ever faithful, and affectionate humble servant,

WILLIAM BECKFORD."

It having been remarked as something extraordinary, that no answer was returned to the Petition of the Livery, it should be remembered, that, according to the etiquette, or established custom of court, the King never does give an answer to any petition whatever. That which was delivered by the Lord-Mayor, and entitled the Petition of the Livery, was not an act of the corporation, was without date or signature, and in short without any regular authentication; it would therefore have been highly improper, to have treated it with more attention than even a regular petition would, in the usual course, have been entitled to. That the above petition was by no means considered as an act of the city, plainly appears by a public declaration since made by the chief magistrate.

Petitions from Yorkshire, Herefordshire, Cornwall, &c. are said to be in agitation, and will, if agreed to, be sent up.

There were more buyers in the Alley yesterday than have been known for some considerable time past.

A letter from Ajaccio, dated June 23, mentions, that the Count de Vaux hath convoked a General Assembly to be holden at Corte the first of next month, which is to be composed of Representatives from all the communities of the kingdom, in order to deliberate on affairs of importance. Probably the first foundations of the government of the island will come under their consideration.

It is said that Mr. Selwyn, the messenger of a letter from a great man to a certain chief magistrate, was so urgent for an immediate answer, that it occasioned the card so be written too precipitately, and with less accuracy, than otherwise would have happened.

It is said that the requisition of men of war and troops to be sent to Virginia, has been disapproved of by a considerable majority at a late board.

JULY 20. On Wednesday last Walter Patterson, Esq; had the honour to kiss his Majesty's hand, on being appointed Governor in Chief of the island of St. John, in the gulf of St. Lawrence, which from the fertility of its soil, and its advantageous situation for carrying on a very extensive fishing trade, is likely very soon to become a most valuable and flourishing colony.

A letter from Florence, dated June 26, says, "Yesterday evening General Paoli arrived here from Leghorn, and was presented to the Count de Rosemberg, Prime-Minister of the Grand Duke, by Mr. Mann, the British Ambassador at this court. The talents of this Corsican Chief are highly praised at Leghorn, who, notwithstanding the loss of his country, shews an uncommon equanimity; and the persons who have conversed with him during his short stay, acknowledge his understanding to be sublime, his manners easy, and his eloquence surprizing.

It is reported, that the Earl of Chatham will soon be created Duke of Kent.

We are told that some material alterations will soon take place in the Board of Trade and Plantations.

Letters from Bristol mention, that party disputes run very high; that a petition lies ready for signing, but that it is generally believed influence will be used to prevent its presentation.

It is confidently reported that Lord Chatham has declined accepting any place in administration; and the hopes of a change are quite vanished.

An express this day from Holland brings an account of the arrival of a Danish Indiaman at Amsterdam, with advice that Hyder Alley, had taken many forts and settlements from the English, and that affairs there were in the utmost confusion. In consequence of the above news India stock is fallen down to 222 Ex. Div. which by our list at one o'clock, appears to have been before at 232. There are other reports that he has actually taken Madrass.

It is said that a great personage, hearing that a certain chief magistrate had taken umbrage at a late reception at St. James's, has given it in express orders, that that gentleman should be informed, that the seeming coolness with which his visit was attended, arose from the great personages not being previously acquainted with the mode intended to be used; and not from any slight whatsoever.

It was confidently reported yesterday, that the famous Paschal Paoli is arrived here.

ent lamentable ſtate of our America

After which a queſtion was Boſton ſhould be a petition or not, which was carried with only one diſſenting voice. Then it was further propoſed, that a committee be choſen to draw up the petition, or if any perſon preſent had a petition that it be read for approbation; when a petition was produced, which was accordingly read and univerſally approved of. It was then moved, that public notice ſhould be given of the time and place where the petition might be ſigned properly ſigned, as it was thought the immediate ſigning of it by ſuch a number of people might probably fail it, and conſequently render it not quite ſo decent to be preſented to his Majeſty.
After the petition was agreed to, it was unanimouſly reſolved,
"That Lord Clare, one of our preſent repreſentatives, by diſregarding the inſtructions of his conſtituents, and inſulting them in his letter to the Chairman of our laſt meeting, has forfeited every claim to our future confidence and eſteem, and juſtly incurred our public contempt."

After the concluſion of the meeting, an attorney deſired to be heard, but was refuſed by the chairman on account of the buſi-neſs being finiſhed; but as he was the only negative voice, it was requeſted by ſome that he might ſpeak. But he had not uttered many words before he was ſilenced by the hiſſes of the populace; and had he not taken ſhelter under the protection of ſome of the principal promoters of the meeting, he certainly would have been roughly handled. On which behaviour a gentleman took occaſion to obſerve, "That certain emiſſaries of power (among whom were ſome lawyers,) had induſtriouſly propagated about the city, in order to intimidate and prevent the independent citizens from ſigning the petition, That a few of the moſt conſiderable would be called before the Houſe of Commons and thrown into priſon.---And that thus threatening the people of England, for ſigning a dutiful petition to their Sovereign, was the moſt glaring and violent attack on the privileges of Engliſhmen, and the utmoſt demonſtration of the exiſtence of every grievance contained in the petition."

PETERSBURGH, May 29, O. S. As ſoon as the preſent war was declared againſt the Ottoman Porte, the Empreſs gave orders to the deputy of Uhaſky, Chan of the Calmouks in the province of Aſtrachan, to ſend 20,000 Calmouks to the army, and that he the deputy, in perſon, ſhould act with all his remaining forces againſt the Tartars, who inhabit the Turkiſh dominions on the river Kuban, which runs from the mountains near the Euxine, even beyond the Caſpian Sea. Soon after the 20,000 Calmouks were diſpatched to join our army, we received the following account of the action which happened on the 29th of April, between the deputy and the Turkiſh ſubjects who inhabit the mountains. On the 28th of April, in the evening, the deputy was informed by his out-poſts, that the enemy appeared at a diſtance, but in a very ſmall number. The next morn-ing they advanced in a large body, drawn up in three lines, and took poſſeſſion of a valley, in which there was a bottom ſurrounded with very thick buſhes, where they placed their right wing, who diſmounted from their horſes. The Calmouks ſurrounded them on all ſides, and began a moſt furious fire upon the enemy, who defended themſelves with great bravery. But colonel Koſhenkoff obſerving a ſmall emi-nence which commanded the valley, took poſſeſſion of it with a ſmall party of Coſſacks and dragoons, and flanking the firſt line of the ene-my, from two field-pieces which he had placed there, obliging them to take ſhelter among the buſhes. The ſecond line had diſmounted be-fore, and had already entered the bottom. The third line only remained on the ſpot, which, at the third diſcharge of the two field-pieces, was thrown into the utmoſt confuſion. The Calmouks obſerving this, fell immediately upon the enemy, and put them totally to the rout. According to the beſt accounts, this body conſiſted of upwards of 6000 ſelect troops, commanded by Arſlan Hirey and Makſouk Hirey, two ſultans of the family of the Chans of Crimea, and many Mourſas or Tartar princes. The fight laſted from two in the afternoon till night: The Calmouks purſued the fugitives ſo cloſely all night, that very few eſcaped, eſpecially at the river Calauſa, the greateſt part were drowned, or ſlain by the Calmouks, who got over the river before them. The Calmouks took five ſtandards, one black, two red, and two white, which were all the colours the enemy had, beſides a great number of coats of mail, and carbines, and upwards of 5000 horſes. The number of priſoners is but very ſmall, as the Calmouks gave no quar-ter. Colonel Coſbenkoff had not one man of his corps killed, or wound-ed, and the Calmouks loſt no more than ſixteen killed, and fifteen wounded, occaſioned, as it is ſuppoſed, by the ſituation of the place, and the confuſion of the enemy, whoſe fire flew over the heads of our people.

LEGHORN, June 10. The Corſican priſoners have been carried back to the iſland to exchange, but their healths are greatly impaired. The Engliſh ſhips which convoy the Corſican officers were obſerved by a French man of war, a chebeck, and four ſaiſeccas. Count de Vaux has reſolved upon demoliſhing the fortifications of Iſola Roſſa, and to tranſport the artillery elſewhere.

BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 4.

WE hear that on Friday forenoon Mr. Otis and Mr. Adams waited on the Commiſſioners of his Majeſty's Cuſtoms here, and the next morning early a meeting was held between two of the Commiſſioners and the above gentlemen, at the Britiſh Coffee-Houſe, King-ſtreet, the deſign of which has not yet tranſpired.

HARTFORD, (in Connecticut) AUGUST 14.

On Tueſday laſt week, about two o'clock, P. M. came up a heavy ſhower of rain, which without intermiſſion continued for ſeveral hours, attended with ſeveral hard claps of thunder; during which the dwelling houſe of Mr. Jacob Seamour, of this town, was ſtruck with lightning, but no perſon hurt. And,

We hear from the weſt diviſion of this town, that the rain fell there in ſuch great quantities, (as 'tis thought) more than 100 tons of hay have been ſwept off in the conſequent flood in low lands.

It is remarkable, that after the ſhower was over, the ſtreet near Captain Daniel Goodwin's (which before the ſhower was quite dry and hard) there appeared great numbers of living animals, nearly reſembling the fiſh kind, though not exactly ſimilar to any particular ſort that has ever been obſerved in theſe parts; they were in length two or three inches, and otherwiſe proportionable.---This may be received as an undoubted matter of fact, as it is atteſted by a great number of perſons of un-queſtionable veracity, who had ocular demonſtration thereof---But how to account for a production of this ſort upon principles of philoſophy, is left as a ſubject of ſpeculative amuſement for the curious.

[illegible] Fort Bedford, August 2[illegible]

[illegible] the Allegany are fled, and a[illegible] Stony Creek, in Bedford county, in motion. Hereupon all the [illegible] are, and but few will be ſowed in [illegible] ſo far as they have children to ſuffer [illegible] the inha-bitants, I know, and I believe will not wait for, but rather go in ſearch of the enemy. God only knows the event, but at preſent 'tis a moving ſcene to ſee thoſe unhappy poor people flying away from their little all, for moſt of them have no other dependance than the little ſummer crop they have ſtill in the ground. As yet no white people are killed, but cattle and horſes are ſtolen and deſtroyed in great abundance.

We learn from good authority, that on the 10th inſtant, in the morning, about two miles beyond Juniata, twenty-five horſe loads of Indian goods going to Fort Pitt, belonging to Mr. Ro-bert Callender, were ſtopped by about thirty men, armed, and their faces painted black, ſomuring to the drivers that unleſs they quitted the horſes they would fire upon them; that it was war with the In-dians, and that they would deſtroy the goods. The drivers begged they would not deſtroy the goods, as they ſhould return with them, or ſword them, but the people would not conſent, and began to unload the horſes; burn and deſtroy the goods, when Juſtice Lyon fortunately came up, and thereby prevented their deſtroying them all. Thoſe they have deſtroyed or carried off, are two kegs of powder, eight pieces of ſtrouds, eight rifles, a large number of ſkins, fourteen matchcoats, and four pieces of half-thicks. Thoſe goods that were ſaved are ſtored about eight miles on this ſide Fort Bedford.

Laſt week was brought to the city for examination, a man who was accuſed of killing an Indian.---The ſtory is related thus: This man and his brother going down the Suſquehannah river in the night, ſaw a number of Indians round a fire, on which, getting pretty nigh them, he fired, and killed one; the other Indians purſued them down the river, took them, and delivered them to Colonel Francis, who ſent the above perſon to Lancaſter goal.

Extract of a letter from St. John's, Newfoundland, July 11.

"Our Governor, the Hon. John Byron, Eſq; arrived here the 6th current, in the Antelope, of 50 guns, Capt. Gayton, in 30 days from Portſmouth; the reſt of the fleet for our protection during the peace, ſay 6 or 7 ſail of the frigates and ſmaller veſſels are upon their different ſtations.---From the general good character of our pre-ſent Governor, and his free affable behaviour, by what we can at preſent judge, have good reaſon to ſuppoſe he will be generally eſteemed, as he does not propoſe to tread in the footſteps of his predeceſſor, who was of more diſſervice to the fiſhery than any one we have had for many years paſt, and that principally owing to his imbibing a falſe opinion upon his firſt entrance into government, and he thought it be-trayed his underſtanding to recant.

"The 15th ult. a large ſloop from Barbados, one Harris maſter, was loſt between Cape Ballard and Renowes, and every ſoul periſhed. It is ſuppoſed ſhe ran upon a rock. Twenty odd caſks of rum, marked STP. RB. WW. DL. &c. were taken up, and from ſome letters and papers found, we conclude it is the above ſloop."

Capt. Caſſon, from Barbados, informs, that on the 31ſt of July, in lat. 29: 7. long. 66: 25, about nine o'clock in the morning, lying too in a heavy guſt, his veſſel was ſtruck with lightning, which firſt took the larboard main top gallant yard arm, and ſet the ſale on fire, which was ſoon extinguiſhed by the rain, from thence it paſſed down the main topmaſt, ſplitting it, and cut away the rigging of the topſail yard, ſo that it fell down, the lightning ſtill keeping the maſt, ſhiver-ing it till it came within a foot of the pump, where a ſmall cord was tied round it, when the lightning took to the inſide of the pump, ſhot out between decks, and paſſed, as they imagined, through the cabbin windows, where it broke ſeveral panes of glaſs. The man at the helm, and two between decks, were a good deal hurt, and ſome per-ſons in the cabbin were almoſt ſuffocated with the ſmoke and ſmell of brimſtone, ſo that they hurried on to the deck as faſt as poſſible.

Extract of a letter from St. Croix, June 8, 1769.

"The packet from Copenhagen has brought the worſt decrees and reſolves from thence that could be, both for North-Americans and the inhabitants of this iſland; they have prohibited the following articles being brought in any Engliſh bottom, viz. Mahogony Ware of all Kinds, Building and Temper Lime, Iron Hoops and Hinges, Madera Wine, Bermuda building Stone, Tar, Pitch, Turpentine, all Kinds of Chaiſes, Carts and Cart Wheels, Salt, Oats and Peaſe, Chairs, Beds and Bedſteads, Cyder, Skins, Cordage, Candles, Soap and Tallow, Horſe Beans, Medicines, Grotts of all Sorts, Twine, Lead, Oil, Vinegar, White-lead, and all Sorts of Paint, Grindſtones, Train Oil, Tongues and Ship Bread; ſo that you may ſee we have a right to bring nothing here but Flour, Lumber, Fiſh, Pork and Beef; on the two latter of which articles the duty is 25 per cent. And what is ſtill worſe, they have permiſſions, unleſs it goes back by the ſame bottom, and it is very ſeldom we can be able to do that; then if we cannot take rum, we have no other way but by bills to get our effects from hence; this is a very impolitic act, as well as a very great im-poſition, and is done chiefly with a deſign of procuring freights for their own veſſels. It ſeems here juſt now as it is in America, the inha-bitants complaining in the ſame manner we do; but they are worſe off yet, for if theſe reſtrictions are carried into execution, they cannot ſub-ſiſt; for without America they cannot live."

ST. JOHN'S, (in Antigua) AUGUST 26.

ON Thurſday the 17th inſtant, between two and three in the afternoon, a dreadful fire broke out in Corn-ſtreet, in the neighbourhood of the Little Negro-market, at the houſe of Mrs. Finlay, occaſioned by a negro heating an oven with part of a pitch barrel, which immediately flamed up to the roof of the kitchen, and ſet the ſame in a blaze; the fire inſtantly commu-nicated itſelf to the neighbouring buildings with the moſt raging fury. The alarm bell being rung, multitudes aſſembled to ex-tinguiſh the fire. In a ſhort time the engines were brought, but were of little ſervice, partly owing to their being much out of order, and partly to the awkwardneſs of thoſe who had the ma-nagement of them. Several houſes were pulled down to the weſt, in hopes of ſtopping its deſtructive progreſs: But all was in vain; the wind blowing freſh from the eaſt-north-eaſt, carried the fiery ſhingles along with it, and ſcattered them on the roofs of ſeveral houſes. In about fifteen minutes the ſtore of Meſſrs. Hay and Kingſley, to the north of the parade became an entire flame, and ſet all the buildings on the parade, and ſtores on the wharves, in the ſame dreadful conflagration. Having thus deſtroyed every thing to the weſt, down to the ſea, it turn'd its fury to the eaſt, and burned all the buildings from the parade up to the guard-houſe; and from the guard-houſe, in a direct ſouth line to Mrs. Martin's houſe near the paſture (the guard and court-houſes only excepted, which were preſerved by the extraordinary activity of the officers and ſoldiers of the 68th regiment): To prevent its running further eaſtward, it was judged neceſſary to blow up the large houſes belonging to Mrs. Elizabeth Grice, and Mrs. Martin; by the dreadful exploſion of the latter, the houſe oc-cupied by Mr. Simms on the eaſt, and that of Mrs. Parke on the ſouth, were both ſhattered to pieces, though the diſtance be-tween them is near 60 feet; at which time Mr. John Carlile was ſo much hurt, that he languiſhed a few days, and died in great agonies.---Though the fury of the fire was checked in that quarter, yet it ſtill raged in the center of the town with great violence, threatening the deſtruction of the remaining buildings to the eaſt: To hinder its progreſs in that part, the houſe belonging to Mr. George Dalzell, and ſeveral others, were blown up; which, with a large ſtone building on the other ſide of the ſtreet, through the mercy of God, ſet bounds to its further deſolations. Dread-ful was the day and night! The devouring flames, the diſtreſ-

[illegible] of the [illegible] cuſtom-houſe, artil-[illegible] ware-houſes on the [illegible] ntinued with much [illegible] is computed that [illegible] es is conſumed--- [illegible] h the center of the town of [illegible] d ſouth ſides a few ſtreets of [illegible] , but inconſiderable: One [illegible] e merchant's ſtore is left [illegible] th their contents, were [illegible] s, 24,000 buſhels of [illegible] ned. The rent roll [illegible] 000l. of which is [illegible] rchaſe, amounts to 225,000l. the other damages ſuſtained by the loſs of proviſions, goods, and deſolation of buildings, amounts to a far greater ſum, ſo that, according to the moſt moderate computation, the whole cannot be leſs than 300,000 l. ſterling.

Thus fell St. John's, the metropolis of an iſland, the pride and glory of her ſiſters, the ſeat of induſtry, the nurſe of merchants, the beloved manſion of generous hoſpitality, and the central mart of the Weſt-Indies! Whoſe harbour was ever crouded with fleets from the four winds, and whoſe wealth and grandeur was equalled by no place of its magnitude. Yeſterday, an opulent, rich, well-built town; to-day, a pile of ruins, confuſion, and ſmoaky aſhes! Yeſterday, its inhabitants giving each other a cheerful good-morrow; to-day, meeting with tears and dejec-tion in their countenances, reciprocally recounting their loſſes to each other, and can hardly trace the veſtiges of their late habi-tations! Let ſuch as were not ſpectators to the tremendous ſcene, only figure to themſelves the circumference of ſuch a flame, the noiſe and craſh of houſes falling, the frequent and dreadful ex-ploſions of others blown up, the convulſed vortex of fiery flakes in the air, with the ſhrieks and lamentations of the unhappy ſufferers, intermixt with the yellings of the negro ſavages; I ſay, let them paint theſe in their imaginations, and withhold their pity and commiſeration, if they can.---In ſhort, the ruins of the place would beggar all deſcription; for 'tis impoſſible, by words, to raiſe an adequate idea of our diſtreſſes.

In this general calamity the Council and Aſſembly have uſed every poſſible means to prevent the negroes from plundering the ſufferers, to deteſt and bring to juſtice ſuch as have been embez-zling or concealing goods or other effects; and to reſtore ſome degree of regularity and order amongſt the diſtreſſed inhabitants of this ruinated place. Every one ſeems eagerly ſolicitous to do good, and to alleviate the miſeries of their afflicted neighbours.

The merchants too, to their honour be it ſpoke, vie with each other in ſelling whatever part of their proviſions they have ſaved from the fire to their fellow ſufferers at the uſual prices; gene-rouſly ſcorning to ſnatch at an advantage the general diſtreſs might give them of enhancing.

May other nations who read the fate and fall of this hapleſs place, without further ſupplication, think on its diſtreſſes, and exert their influence in contributing to its relief: Perhaps the dejected inhabitants of St. John's may yet be able to raiſe its walls from their rubbiſh and ruins, and may God aſſiſt and proſ-per their endeavours.

AUGUST 30. Laſt Sunday a little before day we had two ſmart ſhocks of an Earthquake.

SEPTEMBER 2. Captain Maſſey (arrived this week from St. Vincets) informs us, that he ſpoke with the Captain of the Go-vernment Sloop, who acquainted him, that in cruiſing about, he was attacked by ſeveral armed Canoes full of Indians; that two of his white men were killed in the action, and that he had ſunk ſeven or eight of the Canoes, but what the cauſe of the diſpute was, Captain Maſſey could not learn.

ANDREW HIBBEN,

HAVING removed from the country, has taken the houſe next door to Mr. John Roſe's, near the Governor's-bridge, where he purpoſes keeping a FERRY, to carry paſſengers and horſes over to Hobcaw, or any other place on that ſide the river, and has provided proper boats and careful men for that buſineſs. As there never was any thing of the kind in Charles-Town, and I have had great encouragement from numbers of people to undertake the ſame, hopes it may be of ſome utility to the public, as I am determined to uſe the utmoſt aſſiduity in the buſineſs, and thereby hope to meet with encouragement, merit approbation, and give general ſatisfaction, as I will uſe my utmoſt endeavour that perſons ſhall be accommodated with a boat and hands, at a five minutes warning. I have reſerved the front room in my houſe, for the accommodation of paſſengers to ſit down in, while the boat gets ready, that they may not be expoſed to wait on the wharf, or walk up and down the ſtreets.—If this undertaking ſhould turn out to be of that utility, which is hoped it may, I flatter myſelf, that when the Honourable Houſe of Aſſembly meets again, they will take it into conſideration, hear the prayer of a petition, and indulge me with an eſtabliſhment.

N. B. On the wharf, where the ferry-boat goes from, is a lime ſtore, where perſons may, from time to time, be ſupplied with any large or ſmall quantity of lime, ſlacked for uſe.

They likewiſe deſire thoſe who have any demands againſt them, as co-partners, to ſend them in immediately.

AS the co-partnerſhip of WILLIAMS and PROCTOR is diſſolved, the ſubſcriber now carries on the Taylor's buſineſs at his ſhop in Bedon's alley, where he has lived theſe ſeveral years, and takes this opportunity of thanking his friends and cuſtomers for all paſt favours, and hoping for a continuance thereof, having ſeveral good workmen. Thoſe who pleaſe to favour him with their cuſtom, may depend on being ſerved punctually and expeditiouſly, by

Their obedient humble ſervant,
